The purpose of Claude Allègre's book is to make the earnings of the science -even the most difficult ones- readily available to everybody. His book is neither a technical work nor a course book; on the contrary, it is a book of general knowledge aimed at the ordinary people. He has dealt with the hardest scientific subjects such as physics, chemistry, biology, astronomy, and geodynamics in his latest book "the climate imposture" in the most simplified and clarified way so that everybody can understand. In general, he's given priority to the historical humanitarian and living aspects of science in his all works. Because he thinks, science is not something aloof from man. They are the outputs of the great life adventure of man with its accelerations, hesitations, enlightened and dark sides. But, while doing this, he definitely asserts the fact that he does not sacrifice the core quality and accuracy of science in his books.
